Soviet Premier Provides Castro Grand Reception

Cuban Leader Smiles Only Occasionally

Khrushchev Promises Russia Will Stand Firm Against U.S.

By GEORGE SYVERTSEN

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev led Fidel Castro into Moscow on Sunday for one of the most elaborate receptions ever given a foreign visitor and assured the bearded Cuban leader that the Soviet Union stands shoulder to shoulder with Cuba against the United States.

Whisked to the top of Lenin's Tomb in Red Square soon after his arrival from Murmansk, Castro received the cheers of thousands and declared his conviction that his regime could not exist without Soviet support.

Smiles Rarely

But despite the Russians' "vivats," 21-gun salutes and a Soviet space shot apparently timed for his Moscow arrival, Castro displayed little of the spirit that usually characterizes his public appearances. He smiled rarely and appeared inattentive at times.

And although he credited the Russian Revolution with making possible his own rise to power, he added pointedly: "This does not mean that the Soviet Union made this (Cuban) revolution."

Like Castro, the gigantic official reception generated less excitement than expected. The Red Square crowd was not nearly so animated as the throngs that greeted the Soviet cosmonauts, the only other persons who have received Red Square receptions recently.

Castro flew into Moscow after spending the morning inspecting Soviet missile-carrying submarines at Murmansk, where he landed early Saturday after his secret flight from Havana.

Khrushchev greeted Castro at the airport for their first meeting in 2½ years. It was also their first encounter since Castro's reported falling out with Khrushchev over the withdrawal of Soviet missiles from Cuba.

Perfunctory Embrace

Castro and Khrushchev embraced, almost in a perfunctory manner, and contrary to his usual custom, Khrushchev did not plant any kisses on his bearded visitor's cheeks.

A motorcade sped them into Moscow for the giant Red Square demonstration, climaxing a carnival-like atmosphere in the sunny Soviet capital decked out in May Day decorations and blue and white Cuban flags. Castro seemed to come to life only when acknowledging the cheers of the crowd.

Atop Lenin's Tomb, the most revered Communist shrine, Khrushchev spoke first and declared he was pleased to greet in Red Square "the envoys of the American continent's first Socialist revolution."

Khrushchev again promised, as he had many times before, that the Soviet Union would support Cuba against the threat of what he called "U.S. imperialism."

"It is not Cuba that threatens the United States but the United States that wishes to take away the freedom that the Cuban people won for themselves," he said.

Small Twister Strikes Texas

Nebraska And Kansas Get Blows From Tornadoes, Injuring Many

By United Press International

Tornadoes struck at Texas, Nebraska and Kansas Sunday injuring many persons and causing extensive property damage.

A small twister, torrential rains, hail and winds up to 98 miles an hour battered Fort Worth, Tex., effecting more than $1 million property damage and hospitalizing seven persons.

A tornado near Auburn, Neb., hurled a car carrying a mother and eight children off a road and strewn the occupants along a quarter mile stretch of highway. All the occupants were injured and taken to a Nebraska City hospital.

There were at least four other twisters in north Texas and three more were sighted in north-central Kansas.

Heavy rains that hit the Dallas-Fort Worth area brought a flood warning from the Weather Bureau. The Trinity River at Dallas was expected to reach flood stage by morning, and local flash flooding was occurring along small streams.

The woman and eight children in the car blown off U.S. 136 near Auburn were believed seriously injured. At least one was in critical condition.

The weather bureau reported huge hail—8½ inches in diameter and three inches across—belting an area just east of Montrose, Kan.

More than seven inches of rain fell in 24 hours at Mineola, Tex., just east of Dallas.

To the west, southern Wyoming experienced a late season snow fall and more than three inches of snow covered the ground at Rawlins and Sheridan, Wyo.

Heavy rains soaked Pine Bluff, Ark., and Birmingham, Ala.

British Election Predicted

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's unprecedented weekend meeting with 30 top party and government aides sparked speculation Sunday he may risk a general election in the fall.

Every cabinet member except ailing Labor Minister John Hare, and the leading brass of the Conservative Party central office, gathered at Chiquers, Macmillan's country home, for a wide-ranging review of government policy.

Officially, the conference was billed as an effort to coordinate defense, foreign and domestic policies in an effort to make them more effective.

But the presence of top party officials indicated the conferees had at least one eye on the probable electoral response to these policies.

Macmillan, whose government has been slipping in voter appeal for the last year, must call a general election within the next 18 months.

Are Embassies Around The World Overstaffed?

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP)—Are U.S. embassies around the world overstaffed? Should the U.S. diplomatic corps be broadened to include more specialists?

A lively controversy over these and related issues has been set off by a report on diplomatic personnel issued by a committee under former Secretary of State Christian A. Herter—and by critics of the Herter report.

One distinguished ex-diplomat, Ellis O. Briggs, has protested that Herter's solution for a better diplomacy is to make it bigger—while actually "most of our hundred diplomatic missions abroad could perform twice as effectively with half the people."

Another former foreign service careerist, William P. Cochran Jr., contends that a once top-notch U.S. diplomatic corps has slumped to where "today we have probably the largest, best-paid third-rate service in the world."

23 Million Italians Vote Sunday

Two-Day Election Continues Today; Coalition At Stake

ROME (UPI)—An estimated 23 million Italians voted Sunday in the first day of elections that will decide the fate of Premier Amintore Fanfani's Christian Democratic alliance with the left-wing parties. Officials predicted a record turnout.

Time bomb explosions in northern Italy marred the opening of the two-day elections but the voting was peaceful and the initial turnout heavy. Election officials said about 70 per cent of the more than 34 million voters cast their ballots Sunday.

If past election patterns hold true, Monday's turnout will be another 25 per cent or a total of 95 per cent. The heaviest previous percentage was 93.7 in 1953.

Results Later

Results will not be known until Tuesday.

Four time bombs exploded in the Milan area and a fifth was defused before it went off. Police said the bombs probably were the work of south Tyrolean terrorists and had little to do with the main election issues.

Italians voted early and in heavy numbers in what may be Italy's most important general election since Alcide De Gasperi trounced the Communists in 1948.

Three hours after the polls opened 20 per cent of the 34 million registered voters had cast ballots.

The election—first in five years—was to fill all 630 seats in the chamber of deputies and all 315 in the Senate. A total of 7,479 candidates were running.

The chief issue was the center-left coalition which Fanfani's Christian Democrats worked out with the parliamentary support of the Socialists a year ago.

Until that time, most post-war Italian governments had been either entirely Christian Democratic or based on center or right-wing support.

Sunday and Monday the Italian voters have their first chance to say whether this opening to the left should continue or whether the government should swing back to the right.

The entire two-month campaign by the nation's eight major parties was fought on this issue.

Fanfani's government automatically goes out of existence with the opening of the new parliament early next month. The election results will determine whether he is called upon to form a new center-left cabinet.

Rusk Arrives In Tehran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk arrived from Turkey on Sunday for a round of talks with Iranian officials. He is en route to Pakistan for a conference of the Central Treaty Organization—CENTO.

Rusk was greeted by Foreign Minister Abbas Aram who said he hoped the U.S. secretary's stay would be "highly beneficial."

Rusk leaves for Karachi, Pakistan on Monday.

Rusk said in an airport statement that he carried the greetings of President Kennedy to Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and Empress Farah. He also said he was conveying cordial wishes from Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson who visited Iran last August.

Rusk visited the royal palace and then drove seven miles to Rey to lay a wreath on the tomb of the shah's father.

At the airport, Rusk mentioned the shah's controversial reform program, calling it "courageous and far-reaching."

This program, inspired and directed by the shah, is dedicated to building a brighter and more rewarding future for the Iranian people," he said.

Part of the program is the distribution among peasants of rural lands. The plan has run into opposition from small but vociferous groups.

Ends Soviet Visit

MOSCOW (UPI)—David A. Morse, International Labor Organization director, left Sunday for Paris after a two-week visit to the Soviet Union, the news agency Tass reported. Morse and his party were guests of the Soviet government.

Pilgrim's Death Is Charged To Storekeeper

GADSDEN, Ala. (UPI)—A rural grocery operator was held without bond Sunday on murder charges in connection with the slaying of a civil rights crusader but authorities said their investigation was not complete.

A formal charge of murder was filed Sunday night against Floyd L. Simpson, 40, as state and FBI agents continued their inquiry into the roadside slaying of Baltimore postman William L. Moore.

Moore was shot to death at a roadside park about 13 miles from Gadsden Tuesday night while walking to Mississippi with a segregationist protest letter he hoped to deliver to Gov. Ross Barnett.

Etowah County Sheriff Dewey Colvard said "the investigation is not complete. We will continue to check out every rumor, or report, or clue."

Colvard, asked if there were any other suspects, commented "everybody is a suspect." He said a neighbor of Simpson's could be placed by officers "with him (Simpson) until four o'clock of the day of the murder, but we can't go any further."

The murder charge against Simpson, a father of six and a veteran of the Korean War, was filed shortly after the sheriff received an FBI report of a ballistics test on a .22 caliber rifle owned by Simpson.

Simpson had been held since Thursday in the Etowah County jail on open charges. Residents here described him as a "respectable family man."

Colvard did not reveal the results of the ballistics test or release any other details of the investigation. He said merely that "Simpson is charged with murder in the first degree."

Simpson operates a grocery-filling station in nearby Collbran. His store is located on U.S. Highway 11, the same route along which Moore was walking on his journey to Mississippi.

Senator Javits Asks President To Tell Nation

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., called on President Kennedy Sunday to tell the nation if his hands are tied through any commitment with Russia on U.S. action toward Cuba.

The New York Republican said that if Kennedy's hands are tied because of an agreement with Premier Nikita Khrushchev, the President should say what the binds are.

"If his hands are perfectly free, we should know it," Javits said. Javits also recommended that all channels of communications between Cuba and other American states be cut off. He said it would need the cooperation of Canada and Europe to block off the island and especially the "two-way traffic which leads to subversion and infiltration."

DC-7 Delays Its Landing, Aids Craft

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—The pilot of a Delta Airlines DC-7 Saturday delayed landing here to lead a lost private airplane out of overcast skies to safety.

R. J. Willman, Chicago, pilot of the Delta plane which had 45 passengers aboard, said he tilted his craft's wings to show the smaller craft the way to the runway.

Willman said he received a call for help from a small plane low on fuel and lost at 12,000 feet in cloudy skies.

Although preparing to land at St. Louis, he climbed back up to 12,000 feet in answer to the call, he said.

"We found the plane in five minutes and made radio contact" under the direction of the traffic control at the airport, Willman said.

Willman said the airliner led the way to the airport by using radio, radar and "signaling by tilting our wings. The planes were kept a safe distance apart through radio contact with the airport."

Pilot of the private plane was George Krause, Cincinnati, Ohio. His daughter Edith was also aboard. Krause said his plane was out of gas when it touched the ground.

Cholera Is Top Killer

GENEVA (AP)—Cholera remains the main killer in diseases subject to international quarantine, the World Health Organization reports. Cholera deaths in 1960 totaled 11,216. This was a big drop, however, from 130,481 cholera deaths in 1950.

Everyone In Moscow Is Aware Of May Day

By JAY AXELBANK
United Press International

MOSCOW (UPI)—Everyone in Moscow is shudderingly aware that there is going to be a big parade here next Wednesday, May Day.

They have been rehearsing. What this means is that tanks and rocket launchers, personnel carriers, self-propelled cannon, heavy trucks and other military hardware are making practice runs through the streets.

It's pretty shaking. The hardware grinds up the pavements and belches blue diesel smoke into the air of the city.

One Western correspondent complained he was kept awake for several hours this week by the reverberations in his building from passing heavy equipment.

Twice a year the tanks rumble through Moscow—for the Nov. 7th anniversary of the 1917 revolution, and on May Day. Other than these occasions the sight of

Soviet Union Launches New Satellite

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union launched a new unmanned satellite in its cosmos series Sunday, the 16th since the program began 13 months ago.

The satellites, packed with instruments, apparently are designed to gather information for future manned space flights.

The launching was announced just a few hours before Cuban Premier Fidel Castro arrived for a roaring welcome in the Soviet capital.

Two other cosmos satellites, numbers 14 and 15, also were launched this month, on April 13 and 22, indicating a step in the pace of the program. The only other launching announced by the Soviets this year was the Lunik IV probe which went up April 2 and missed the moon by 5,270 miles.

Tass said Cosmos 16 was put into orbit with an initial period of revolution of 90 minutes 24 seconds. It said the orbit of the newest satellite brings it as close as 129 miles to the earth and as distant as 250 miles.

Tass did not say just what instruments were aboard but said they were for "continuing space research."

"The instrumentation of the satellite functions normally," Tass said. "The coordinating-computing center is processing the incoming information."

Inclination of the orbit to the equatorial plane was given as 65 degrees and 1 minute. Information was being broadcast back on a frequency of 19,995 megacycles.

(United Press International's monitoring station near London picked up signals that were irregular in intensity, possibly indicating the craft was turning from side to side.)

Dominican Leaders Cite Haitian Act

Defense Treaty To Be Invoked This Morning

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Dominican Republic Sunday accused Haiti of seizing its embassy in the Haitian capital and the Organization of American States (OAS) moved immediately in an effort to head off an armed clash between the two Caribbean countries.

At the same time, U.S. officials said reports from the Haitian capital, Port-Au-Prince, showed that all Latin American embassies there had been encircled by Haitian forces. The United States prepared to evacuate some 1,000 of its citizens in the capital.

The OAS council was asked to invoke the inter-American Rio defense treaty after the Dominican Republic threatened to use force against Haiti unless Haitian troops were withdrawn from its embassy.

Haiti showed no immediate signs of agreeing to the 8 a.m. EDT Monday deadline set by the Dominicans, who threatened to use military force to oust them.

The request for joint OAS action was made by OAS Council Chairman Gonzalo Facio, of Costa Rica, who also messaged the Haitian and Dominican governments to "refrain from any action that might jeopardize the present consultations."

The council was considered certain to invoke the Rio defense treaty at a later meeting.

Invocation of the Rio Treaty would mean that the 18 other members of the inter-American organization could take military measures if necessary to avert a clash between Haiti and the Dominican Republic.

The threatened hostilities were the latest in a series of incidents involving Haiti and the Dominican Republic, neighboring states of the island of Hispaniola.

The Dominican government has accused Haiti of conspiring with elements of the ousted Trujillo dictatorship to assassinate President Juan Bosch.

Haitian officials have charged that the Dominican Embassy was harboring conspirators against the regime of President Francois Duvalier, who is threatened with revolt in his own country.

The Dominicans threatened to send gunboats into Port-Au-Prince unless Haiti pulled back its troops from the Dominican Embassy.

In turn, Haiti served notice that it would defend itself "by all available means" if the Dominican Republic tried to carry out its threat.

Typhoon Is Near Guam

AGANA, Guam (AP)—The people of Guam batted down Sunday night for the expected onslaught of Typhoon Olive. Guam suffered severe damage in Typhoon Karen last Nov. 11.

Olive, an out of season storm, upgraded to typhoon early Sunday, packed top winds of 125 miles an hour and hovered about 100 miles southwest of this western Pacific island.

Navy and Air Force weather units said Olive was moving north about 12 miles an hour.

The storm's peak was expected to hit Guam early Monday with Olive's center passing about 20 miles west of the military base island.

Peak winds of 90 miles an hour were predicted for Guam.

Damage could be severe because many Guam residents still are living in temporary homes and tents and the island still is littered with debris from Typhoon Karen.

Autumn is the western Pacific's normal typhoon season. Olive is the first storm of typhoon force ever to threaten Guam in April.

Adventurer's Plane Seized, Grounded

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Agency said Sunday it learned that the airplane owned by adventurer Alexander Rorke was flying the night Rorke and three companions dropped homemade bombs on a Havana oil refinery.

The airplane, a twin-engine Beechcraft, was seized by the FAA Saturday night at Meriden, Conn., and ordered grounded pending an investigation.

The plane is owned jointly by Rorke and Geoffrey Sullivan, a commercial pilot. Both denied that the plane was used in the raid.

Rorke said that Sullivan flew him from Florida to Washington on Friday, the day after the Cuban raid.

Rorke claimed that he and his three unidentified companions made the raid with an amphibious plane that took off from an island in the Caribbean. He said he returned to the United States by boat.

Oscar O. Bakke, assistant administrator of the FAA, said in New York that the plane was seized by federal agents Saturday night for investigation.

"We are investigating the possible use of the aircraft on a flight to Havana," Bakke said.

He said that although Rorke and Sullivan denied that the plane was the one used in the Havana raid, FAA investigators had determined that the plane was flying the night of the raid.

"If the flight to Havana was made in that plane, such an operation would subject owners and operators to civil penalties," Bakke said. He said the penalties could be as high as $13,000 fines for both Rorke and Sullivan and that in addition Sullivan's license as a pilot could be revoked or suspended.

Havana Radio confirmed that an unidentified plane had dropped bombs on the oil refinery and blamed the United States. But it said that there was no damage.

Austrians Reelect President

VIENNA (AP) — President Adolf Schaerf, 73, Sunday won a resounding reelection victory for a second six-year term.

Schaerf received 2,473,694 votes or 53.41 percent, defeating the Conservative candidate, ex-Chancellor Julius Raab, 72, who polled 1,813,787 votes, or 40.63 percent, the Interior Ministry announced.

Independent candidate Josef Kimmel, 66, a former gendarme general, was a poor third with 176,649 votes, or 3.96 percent.

The Presidency in Austria is mostly a ceremonial post but it holds considerable influence under the constitution if the President wants to use it.

The actual governing is done by the Chancellor (Prime Minister).

Takes Hundreds From Havana

By GEORGE ARFELD

HAVANA (AP) — An American freighter sailed from Havana on Sunday with hundreds of Cubans journeying to exile in the United States.

The ship took on the Cuban passengers after delivering another installment of the Bay of Pigs prisoners' ransom.

The Cuban press said the ship, the American Surveyor, would sail directly to Philadelphia, but other sources insisted it would stop over in Port Everglades, Fla., after an overnight journey through the Florida Straits.

The Communist newspaper Hoy said the Castro regime had granted permission for as many as 800 persons to leave aboard the freighter.

A source at the Swiss Embassy, which handles U.S. affairs in Cuba, said many of those leaving are Americans and their dependents who chose repatriation.

Newsmen and passengers' relatives were not permitted near the docks, but there appeared to be no departure from procedures followed when American ships returned with Cubans and American repatriates after delivering previous ransom installments.

Those leaving were permitted to take only three changes of clothing with them. All other possessions were forfeited to the state.

Utah Public Schools May Board Proposes Remain Closed Next Fall

By G. K. HODENFIELD

DENVER (AP) — Almost certainly, Utah's public schools will not open next fall.

The education of 250,000 children will be interrupted, 9,000 teachers will be idled and a multi-million public enterprise will grind to a halt.

Dr. W. Dean Belnap, President of the Utah School Boards Association, made those grim predictions Sunday.

What happens in Utah, he added, probably will spread to other states.

The Utah situation, and its implications for other states, is a perfect case history for study by the National School Boards Association, which opened a three-day convention here Sunday.

Utah teachers voted overwhelmingly last month not to sign contracts for the 1963-64 school year unless the state legislature, in a special session, increases the funds available for public schools.

The Utah Education Association also has asked the National Education Association in Washington, D.C., to inform all its members of the Utah situation, and to request them not to seek employment in Utah until the controversy is settled.

Belnap said, "Their action is a threat to the concept of local control of education. If their program is carried out it could omists, to serve mid-20th century U.S. interests as a great power around the world. This requires "a substantial departure from the traditional diplomacy of the past," it said.

It said the State Department's career foreign service should be broadened to include the department's civil servant specialists.

It said other federal agencies with large overseas staffs should bring their foreign workers into a "family of foreign affairs services." It specifically recommended that the U.S. Information Agency and the aid-administering Agency for International Development create career foreign services.

The most biting public criticism of this approach to date has appeared in the Foreign Service Journal, a magazine put out by active and retired foreign service officers.

Briggs, who held seven ambassadorships under Democratic and Republican administrations, said U.S. diplomacy has yet to recover from its reorganization of the 1950s which transferred large numbers of State Department civil servants into the career foreign service. That was done after a 1954 committee study headed by Henry M. Wriston.

Briggs chided the Herter group for what he called a "two can do it better than one" doctrine.

Legislative Machinery May Speed Up

By FRANK ELEAZER
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legislative machinery on both sides of Congress picks up speed this week with a heavy schedule in the House and the Senate facing a major test on spending cuts.

The House is scheduled to act on bills giving employers a minor tax break, keep public health, education and federal labor activities rolling and to pump an additional $2 billion into lending authority of the export-import bank.

While the house itself deals with these matters, assorted committees will be considering President Kennedy's tax cut proposal, equal pay for women, highway construction irregularities in Arizona, a possible way to delay raising the debt ceiling and what, if anything, to do about the "ratings" problem in broadcasting.

The Senate will take up the House-approved proposal to pump another $450 million into anti-recession public works projects.

The proposal is part of a $1.4 billion supplemental money bill and it is here that the Senate will face its big test on spending cuts.

Senate Republicans have a series of amendments aimed at cutting the funds and Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, R-Mass., will seek to chop it to $250 million.

The Senate is expected to add to the measure an amendment which would ban fat fees to lobbyists for the $73 million Philippine war claims bill enacted last year.

May Wedding Is Predicted

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mirror said Sunday night it has learned that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and divorcee Marguerite (Happy) Filter Murphy will marry next month.

In a copyright story, the Mirror quoted an unnamed friend of the Rockefeller family as saying: "The date will be Saturday, May 18, or Sunday, May 19. The ceremony will be performed at a Protestant Episcopal church—but not the one where Rockefeller usually worships, the Riverside church on Riverside Drive.

"It will be within New York State, but outside the city."

Robert McManus, press secretary to the governor, declined comment on the published report.

Surge For Goldwater Progresses Despite His Disclaimer For 1964

EDITOR'S NOTE — Sen. Barry Goldwater, conservative Republican spokesman from Arizona, still insists he's running for nothing but reelection to his Senate seat in 1964. But many other Republicans have other ideas. Jack Bell, longtime chief of the AP Senate staff and student of Goldwater's career, says the Arizona man may be forced into the center of the contest for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination. He tells why in the following story.

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., appears now to be nearing the point of no return in a tide of developments carrying him toward a contest for the 1964 GOP presidential nomination.

Goldwater, a spokesman for Republican conservatives, is on the record with an assortment of disclaimers that he has any ambition to obtain the nomination or that he wants the job of being president, even if he could get it.

But despite the Arizona senator's repeated insistence that he has no intention of seeking any office other than reelection to the Senate next year, an emotional surge of support for him has gained such proportions that the presidential contest decision may be taken out of his hands.

Goldwater won't concede this has happened yet. But he said in an interview: "I realize this thing is a sort of a forest fire that you can't stamp out with your feet. But I am not running for anything except reelection to the Senate."

Arizona's primary in which he expects to seek renomination, is not until September 1964, certainly several weeks after the GOP national convention has picked its nominees.

The surge for the senator as a possible nominee has followed a geographical pattern, spreading from a well-solidified position in the South to the Midwest and to some areas of the Far West. These are the areas Goldwater says could supply the necessary electoral votes to defeat President Kennedy. It remains to be seen whether a majority of convention delegates will agree to write off New York and the other large industrial states for such an experiment.

The popularity among Republican regulars of Goldwater's conservative stance has been demonstrated by the rash of draft movements that has broken out in these regions. The senator gives the enthusiasts involved no outward cooperation. But he has quit trying to halt them.

To emphasize his aloofness, Goldwater will be among the missing when a national committee to draft him stages a July 4 rally here.

If he continues to refuse to set up any organization and keeps on declining to accept presidential campaign contributions, the effort to get the nomination for Goldwater promises to become one of the most haphazard in history.

As the situation stands now, Goldwater's personal contribution will be limited largely to winning the plaudits of large party audiences by ripping into the Kennedy administration in a never-ending series of speeches in all parts of the country.

He will stand aside if friends enter his name in presidential primaries where they don't have his consent for the action. As of now, he says he will refuse consent where it is required to get his name on the ballot.

"I don't think anyone will be surprised if some of my friends throw my name in some of the primaries," he said. "If that happens I won't campaign. I'll just see what happens. But I am not going to be a party to filing my name."

Despite their principal's negative attitude, many in the party who have been disappointed every four years by the nomination of a man they deem too liberal seem determined to convert Goldwater from a mere symbol of their discontent into a live and kicking possibility for the nomination.

23 Freight Cars Are Derailed, 15 Persons Hurt

MECHANICSBURG, Pa. (AP)—The derailment of an entire freight train of 23 cars, three of them tankers filled with gases, triggered fire and an explosion Sunday, injuring or sickening at least 15 persons. Most of them were treated and released at hospitals.

About 150 people in the village of Brandsville and on neighboring farms and at a close by trailer camp were evacuated as a precaution, and may not be able to return home until late tonight, authorities said.

The Reading Railroad train, bound from Hagerstown, Md., to Harrisburg, Pa., included four tank cars, one of them carrying chlorine gas, two liquid petroleum gas, the fourth caustic soda.

The derailment occurred soon after dawn in open country near the village, which is 12 miles southwest of Harrisburg in central Pennsylvania and five miles south of Mechanicsburg.

The two cars of liquid petroleum gas caught fire. The overturned car of chlorine gas leaked fumes, which made several firemen ill, and raised a fear that the seepage might contaminate a creek flowing parallel to the railroad tracks. But William Reynolds, manager of the Mechanicsburg Water Co. which serves the area, said the chlorine posed no real threat to the water.

Fred Ellis, superintendent of safety for the Reading Railroad, said the cause of the derailment had not been determined.

Lacked Toll, Jail Escapees Are Recaptured

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—Two fugitives from the Frederick County, Md., jail were recaptured in Yonkers Sunday because they didn't have 25 cents to pay a parkway toll.

Donald Hackey, 20, and Elbert Gardner, 16, who broke jail Friday night, were arrested at a toll booth on the Saw Mill River Parkway.

When the two couldn't produce 25 cents to enter the parkway, the toll booth operator called the police.

Westchester County Patrolman Robert McTigue said the two readily admitted they were fugitives. Neither was armed.

Hackey and Gardner—who got as far as New York in a stolen car—escaped from jail with five other prisoners. Two are still at large.

Most State Legislatures Seen Raising Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP)—While session or is barred from considering taxes this year. Reports were not received from a dozen states which did not send delegates to the conference, but an earlier survey by the Tax Foundation indicated that most of these are considering increases in their sales, income, cigarette, or alcoholic beverage taxes.

Reports from about 34 states, brought to the annual meeting of the National Taxpayers Conference here last week and tabulated Sunday by the Tax Foundation, Inc., New York, showed that:

—Eleven states have enacted increases or approved new taxes adding more than $300 million a year to their citizen's tax bill.

These states are Arizona, Idaho, Indiana, Missouri, New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah and Nebraska.

—Eleven more state legislatures still are deliberating proposed increases totaling more than $1 billion.

—One state, Colorado, reduced taxes, and in four other states the legislature either has no 1963 session or is barred from considering taxes this year.

Byrd Opposes Early Hearing On Tax Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Harry Byrd, D-Va., remains wholly unimpressed by the old but freshly raised argument that he should have his Senate Finance Committee start hearings on tax legislation before the House passes a bill.

The Virginian told a reporter Sunday that he feels such a procedure would be only a waste of time and indicated that he has no plans for any such hearings.

He spoke against the background of a request, made in a letter from four Democratic members of the Finance Committee that hearings begin promptly.

The four who sent the letter are Albert Gore, Tenn., Paul H. Douglas, Ill., Vance Hartke, Ind., and Clinton P. Anderson, N.M.

Gore told a reporter, "I believe we ought to get started and not wait for the House to send us a bill late in the session as it so often has, when tempers are frayed and time is short and we cannot give it proper consideration."

Byrd reiterated that he would begin taking testimony on the legislation immediately after the House acts. He does not expect this before June.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—About 500 persons will join Mrs. Opal Barron, wife of Gov. W. W. Barron, Tuesday in a breakfast kicking off the governor's State Clean-Up Program for 1963. Program director Ray George said civic groups around the state also have scheduled kick-off breakfasts Tuesday, designated as "Centennial Beautification Day."

About 56 picketed Saturday. During past demonstrations, more than 70 persons were arrested on disorderly conduct and failure to obey an officer charges.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Fred E. Weisgal, attorney for four teachers who were not rehired at Frostburg State Teachers College, says the men should be retained on the faculty to preserve the college's reputation.

Weisgal urged that the board of trustees of State Teachers Colleges meet with the teachers and R. Bowen Hardesty, president of the college.

Hardesty said he did not rehire the faculty members because three of them were immature and one did not continue his graduate studies.

The teachers maintained their release came over the issue of academic freedom and they were not rehired because of their liberal views.

HAGERSTOWN (AP)—A 75-year-old janitor, who shot himself after killing his 18-year-old wife and step-daughter, died late Friday night.

The janitor, William McNary Thomas, told police he shot his step-daughter, Robin Lynn Landaker, 4, then shot his wife, Barbara Jean, before turning the gun on himself April 18.

He said he shot the girl because he didn't want her to grow up like her mother, and shot the mother because she supposedly was drinking and lying about it. They were married last November after Thomas had hired her as a maid.

Boat Capsized, One Drowns, Second Saved

CENTREVILLE, Md. (AP)—One man was presumed drowned, when their 12-foot outboard motor boat capsized Sunday in calm waters of the Eastern Bay, off Romancoke Point on Kent Island.

The victim was Fred Sheely, 42, of Baltimore. Police and scuba divers were searching the bay for his body.

Sheely's companion, John R. Shirley, 49, of Baltimore, was saved when his 8-year-old son, who was on the shore, saw the boat overturn and screamed for help.

James Rogers, 49, of Millersville, and Eugene Morrison, 37, of Baltimore, heard the boy, jumped into a row boat and rowed to the capsized boat, about one mile offshore.

Rogers said Shirley had a "death grip" on the side of the boat when they picked him up. There was no sign of Sheely in the placid waters.

Shirley was taken to Anne Arundel County Hospital in Annapolis where he is listed in fair condition.

Luke Employee Wins Disability

An Allegany County Circuit Court jury decided Friday that an employee of the Luke mill of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, who was injured on the job, sustained 60 per cent permanent partial disability of his back due to the accident.

They heard an all-day appeal case which had been filed by Norris C. Schade of Keyser after the Workmen's Compensation Commission ruled that the claimant sustained 45 per cent permanent partial disability.

The case was heard by Associate Judge W. Earle Cobey.

It was pointed out that the claimant has received $3,750 in compensation and the decision of the jury will award him an additional $1,875.

Four physicians as well as the claimant testified. Edward Dawson was foreman of the jury of five women and seven men.

Horace P. Whitworth Jr. was attorney for the paper company and Simon Reilly and Milton Gerson were counsel for the claimant.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
(c. 1963) By The Chicago Tribune

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠ 8 6 3 ♦ A 6 2 ♣ A K Q J 9 8 2

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass Pass 1 ♣ Pass
1 ♣ Pass 3 ♣ Pass
3 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—Four diamonds. Prospects for a slam are excellent despite the fact that your partner originally passed and, as yet, has shown no special signs of strength. If partner shows the ace of hearts now, you will have to sign off but, if he is able to bid five diamonds, you should contract for a slam in clubs.

Q. 2—As dealer, you have an 80 part score and hold:
♠ 6 2 ♦ A J 10 9 8 7 4 3 2 ♦ J 3

What do you bid?

A—Four hearts. True, this is a bid over score and it is not our object to try for a slam, but on hands of this type there is virtually no chance of ever buying the contract any cheaper. So to start the bidding at a lower level only makes it easier for the opposition to enter the bidding and find their best fit.

Q. 3—As South, neither vulnerable, you hold:
♠ 8 6 5 4 ♦ K Q 9 3 ♦ A J 10 8 ♣ Q

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass Pass Pass 1 ♣
Pass Pass Double Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Pass. This is rather unusual strategy at the one level with only four diamonds, but you do have the required three trump tricks plus a trick on the side, and partner's original pass makes game prospects for your side exceedingly dim.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
♠ 6 3 ♦ A Q 8 5 2 ♦ Q 9 5 4 ♠ 6 4

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♣ Pass Pass ?

What do you bid?

A—Pass. Five is usually disclaimed to let the opponents buy a contract so cheaply, but in this instance the chances are strong that they have a much better spot in one of the black suits. This will surely be the case if partner was laying a mild trap. If he wasn't, then the other side surely has enough strength to outbid us in any event.

Traffic Light Is Planned On U.S. Route 40

The traffic light at the intersection of U.S. Route 40 and Braddock Road will be in operation soon, according to John D. Bushby, district engineer for the State Roads Commission.

The new light will be coordinated with a signal at the entrance to the LaVale Plaza Shopping Center parking lot just west of Route 40.

Mr. Bushby also said the SRC is widening Vocke Road from Braddock Road to Winchester Road. The work is an interim project as the Vocke Road will be included in the Thruway work.

Three feet is being added to each side to accommodate the traffic anticipated with the opening of the Searstown Shopping Center.

Secrets Of Charm

Dieting Should Be Way Of Eating, Not Starving

Physical education experts believe in a daily 1,200 calorie diet for the reducer, a daily 3,200 calorie diet for one who wishes to gain. But you must put those calories to work! The foods that count up calories should also count up vitamins, minerals and protein, or you'll lack sparkle. You'll look and feel lifeless.

It is a fallacy that as you grow older, you should eat more. The truth of the matter, according to nutritionists, is that you should cut down on your calorie consumption five per cent for each decade beyond the age of 25.

Reason for this, say dietary researchers, is that after 25 the normal adult experiences a decrease in physical activity corresponding to the increase in age. Thus, you need fewer calories. It is recommended that you concentrate more on the quality than on the quantity of the food you eat. As calories are reduced with age and diminishing activity, your need for other nutrients (vitamins, minerals, protein) remains the same.

At any age you need the calcium in milk and cheese for strong teeth and bones. Phosphorus, found in meat and poultry, in eggs and yellow cheese, is important for the same reason. You need the vitamin C of greens and citrus fruits, the protein in meat.

The "overweight problem" directly pertains to the amount of calories consumed. You need calories—for energy—but beware of too many. More important than how much you eat is what and when you eat. You should have properly balanced meals on a regular schedule. To help you plan your diet, my staff has prepared a booklet—"Your Beauty Diet"—which you may obtain for 10¢ by writing to me, John Robert Powers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope along with your dime.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN: Ten years ago when my husband moved his offices into a new building he asked me to do the decorating. I worked awfully hard but the results were worth it. I used walnut paneling, beiges, browns, and burnt orange for contrast. Everyone remarked on the quiet elegance and the atmosphere of dignity and restfulness. Friends suggested I go in for decorating as a career.

Several weeks ago my husband mentioned re-doing his offices. His secretary is putting to work some of HER ideas, he said.

Yesterday when I saw the finished offices I almost fainted. It looks like a Miami nightclub. I said nothing but I'm sure he sensed my disappointment. Should I come right out and tell him his offices are a monstrosity and that I'd be happy to redo them for him?

He seems to think his secretary did a "sensational" job. Please advise. — OUTRAGED.

DEAR OUTRAGED: Say nothing. Any comment from you would sound like sour grapes.

Get busy on a decorating project at home. It will help to keep your mind off the office. And stay away from there. If you don't see it, it won't bother you so much.

DEAR ANN: Mother has always run my life. I thought when I married she'd stop, but no such luck.

Mother is a bright woman and I'm certain much of her advice is sound. I resist it, however, just because it comes from her. Now, we are having a violent disagreement and I'd like your views.

Our 3½-year-old son has been walking and talking since he was 14 months old. He's unusually active and I'm exhausted trying to keep him from destroying the house.

I've lost 20 pounds since this child was born. My doctor suggested nursery school, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., not only to give me relief, but to keep the boy busy. My mother says young women today are running away from their children and dodging their responsibilities by sticking preschool children in day nurseries. She says this produces insecure, rejected children. Is mother right or wrong?

—NO MATCH FOR MOM.

DEAR NO MATCH: For every parent who is running an adult's life there must be an adult who is permitting it. Domination is a two-way proposition.

Day nurseries are excellent for some children and not good for others. Since your doctor recommended it for your child, take his advice. Precocious and active youngsters are better off in a nursery school than at home with a nervous, hair-pulling mother.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: With all this talk about physical fitness I am becoming more conscious of my husband's laziness. When Horace comes home from work all he wants to do is sit in the chair and watch TV and read the newspaper. He's even too lazy to get a drink of water for himself.

Some of the husbands of my friends enjoy tennis, badminton, handball, and even skiing. Horace says he never was the athletic type and he's not about to go in for body-building at this stage of life.

Horace is 58 years old, not overweight, just flabby. Can you think of something I can say to get him out of the rocking chair? Many thanks.

—JUST THE WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Leave the poor guy alone. For some men, pushing 60 is exercise enough.

A man who has never done much in the way of athletics should not start playing tennis and badminton at 58. It could kill him.

Some men get all the exercise they need serving as pallbearers for their buddies who tried to kid the calendar.

W. Va. Coal Mine Tragedy Probe Is Continuing

DOLA, W. Va. (UPI) — A group of investigators spent much of Sunday groping through the dark passageways of Compass No. 2 mine in an effort to find out what caused an explosion that killed 22 miners Thursday night.

State Mines Director Leonard Timms said he and officials of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, the United Mine Workers union and Clinchfield Coal Co. will go back down the 330-foot shaft Monday to resume their on-site inspection.

Timms said damage to the coal conveyor belt in the blast area about 1 1/2 miles from the shaft was "right considerable." He said it would take several days to repair the damage after investigators are through with their preliminary inspection.

The director said he had a chance to see a recent report by inspector Ewell Snuffer, who said he found accumulations of coal dust near the belt and detected an accumulation of methane gas.

However, Timms said such conditions would not be considered unusual. "That's why we have inspections — to catch these things and correct them," he said.

Timms said he understood the two conditions listed by Snuffer had been corrected at the mine — classified as gassy — only a few days before the fatal blast.

The director said electrical and ventilation equipment was checked and put into operation before the inspectors descended into the mine. However, Timms said the equipment will need additional repairs before the two damaged sections of the big mine could be put back into operation.

Two other sections of the mine were not affected by the blast and could resume operations as soon as investigators are through with their on-site inspections.

Methane gas apparently caused the blast, Steve Canonic, vice president of Clinchfield Coal, said "a spark of some sort" was believed to have set it off.

Funeral services were held Sunday for three of the victims, two in Philippi and one in Rinehart, Harrison County.

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W. Va., said in a statement Saturday he believes "the time has arrived again for officials of the executive branch to inform the Congress as to the adequacy of existing laws and to make recommendations they believe are necessary."

Randolph County Centennial Chairman Rose Martin told the Upper Monongahela Valley Association that the 27th annual Mountain State Forest Festival will highlight the county's centennial observance.

Chaos In Laos Was Inevitable

What is happening in Laos could hardly have been a surprise. Seeds for future conflict were dropped into the soil when the three-way coalition was set up.

But as long ago as February newspapers in Bangkok, Thailand and Hong Kong reported that Chinese Communists were building strategic roads linking Yunnan province with Laos. These were similar to roads built to the Indian border last year.

Papers in Viet Nam also reported this activity, for Red troops have penetrated far down the Mekong River to invade extreme South Vietnam. Communist engineers also were reported building a road from their territory to North Burma.

These military actions were far larger than needed for the infiltration of Laos. The crossing of the Laotian border was a direct contravention of the Geneva agreement by which the troika government was formed. But nothing was done about it at that time.

Laos and Cambodia now provide the southward funnel for Viet Cong troops to make the bottom pincer for the South Viet Nam Republic. Already refugee displacement is second only to that of Korea in 1950-51. The Reds are playing for keeps.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

O What A Tangled Web

Ever since Assistant Defense Secretary Arthur Sylvester first opened his big mouth to justify the use of the lie in manipulating public opinion to Cold War ends, the Kennedy Administration has been under attack for "managing" the news. Now the criticisms have gone one step further: the Administration is being accused of "managing" news events.

Specifically it is being noised around that it was all a dastardly plot of the State Department to force an election in Canada and get rid of government we didn't like. According to this way of thinking, our supposedly bumbling lecture to the Canadians on the duties of an ally was nicely calculated to provoke Prime Minister Diefenbaker into undertaking an anti-U.S. election campaign which he couldn't win. The Canadians played patsies to our supposed Machiavellism, and Lester Pearson, our friend, forthwith took over Diefenbaker's job.

Whether this is a tenable theory or not, it is a natural deduction from the Arthur Sylvester notion that anything is fair in love or Cold War. Extending the theory a bit, it is easy to see an attempted U.S. manipulation of British politics in the welcome recently accorded Harold Wilson, the new British Labor Party leader, in Washington. Wilson, who has spoken in the past as an inveterate enemy of traditional British liberties, was introduced here as a moderate fellow who hadn't really meant it when he attacked such things as free consumer choice in the market place or threatened a return to the British class war politics of Laborite Aneurin Bevan's day.

The Washington-assisted build-up of Wilson as a pipe-smoking middle-of-the-roader is as slick a job as anything that Madison Avenue ever accomplished. Looking past the public relations of the "new" Wilson, however, we discover a confirmed radical Leftist. Unlike the late Mr. Gaitskill, who was a really moderate British Laborite, Wilson thinks the British Labor Party should still stand for an increasing nationalization of industry. He has denounced dividends as "unearned" income, and he is a "soak the rich" advocate when he watches shrewd investors making something out of capital gains. Although British taxation is unconscionably high at the moment, Wilson would make it even higher. Some of his more extreme partisans have actually suggested that an annual capital levy be exacted from all people who have a net worth of $20,000 in cash, stocks or real estate. In America such a levy would hit hundreds of small home owners.

Wilson has an animus against anything in England that retains a gracious Edwardian flavor. He was born in Yorkshire, the son of a chemist, and he had to scabble his way into Oxford. His ability to pull himself up by his own bootstraps is very much to his credit, but it has obviously given him an addiction to envy.

In attacking Prime Minister Macmillan he has stooped to personal sarcasms about anyone who had the good fortune to go to school at Eton. This, in American terms, is like sneering at the late Franklin D. Roosevelt because he went to Groton or at President Kennedy or Adlai Stevenson because they went to Choate.

The odd thing about the Washington-assisted build-up of Harold Wilson is that the man is one of Britain's most vocal enemies of such build-ups. He has been quoted as saying that public relations is "a most degrading profession." Well, others before Wilson have stooped to conquer.

It would, of course, be stretching the imagination to read anything unduly sinister in the welcome extended in the U.S. to Harold Wilson. Yet it is being whispered and actually written that the U.S. junked the Skybolt air-to-ground missile not because it wouldn't work but because Prime Minister Macmillan needed it to stay in power. Inability to deliver the promised Skybolt made the Macmillan government seem stumbling. This is calculated to help the Laborites win the next election.

Suspensions of such Machiavellism in Washington surely credit the Administration with being much cleverer than it really is. But the "it's-all-a-plot" imputations will persist as long as the Arthur Sylvesters in Washington justify Machiavellism as a way of political life.

'You Shee—He'sh To Blame For Thish'

Politics Of Prosperity: Confidence, Frustration

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON
The politicians are wonderfully confident, but the policymakers are visibly frustrated. This contrast in the bosom of the Kennedy administration is very striking to a returning traveller.

The reasons for the policymakers' frustration are too obvious to need emphasis. From Cuba to Laos, our problems abroad are currently proving intractable or worse. And at home a Congress asked to pass a fairly modest domestic program has also proved intractable or worse, at least thus far.

The reason for the confidence of the politicians, including the master-politician of them all, President Kennedy himself, is the unexpectedly brisk performance of the U.S. economy. These days, the President is given to mocking reminiscences of a large rally of advisory economists organized last spring by Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon.

The seers looked at their statistical form-charts and favorite economic indicators, and almost unanimously predicted a recession this year. The argument that a recession was on the way led the President to make his last year's promise of early, massive tax cuts, which in turn produced the program of tax reduction and reform now being mulled over by the House Ways and Means Committee.

But instead of a downturn, we have an upturn, or so it is now believed. Consider as illustration of the contrast, the history of the gross national product forecasts. The chairman of the President's Economic Advisors, Walter Heller, never joined the Treasury panel in forecasting a recession. Yet his technical staff was sufficiently infected with the prevailing pessimism to wish to make a low forecast of gross national product for 1963.

Heller had to deliver many a pep talk to his technicians, in order to persuade them to agree to the final forecast-figures of $578 billion. In November-December, they feared they were overestimating by about $5 billion lower. Now, however, there is widespread agreement, in the Treasury, in the Economic Advisory Council and elsewhere, that the $578 billion figure is an underestimate, once again by about $5 billion.

Yet the fact that times are better than had been expected has in no way shaken the Administration on the need for a massive tax cut. Instead, it has increased the confidence of both

Secretary of the Treasury Dillon and Economic Advisor Heller that the proposed tax cut will produce the desired results. As Heller has put it, "Reversing a downturn is very much harder than augmenting an upturn." In other words, when a recession was still feared, there were also lurking fears that the business and investment incentive provided by a tax cut would merely hold the economy on an even keel, without promoting a real take-off.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

WORDY DEBATE — There's mounting evidence that the Republican-Democratic debate over economy in government consists more of words than actions. A shining example was the recent exchange between leaders of the two opposing political factions on the House floor.

Rep. Charles A. Halleck, R-Ind., in a discussion on economy, remarked, "I understand some references have been made to a letter addressed to me by former President Eisenhower. I do not care how much you undertake to belittle his advice to the American people, but believe me, that advice will be listened to."

Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., replied, "I have no intention of belittling General Eisenhower. No one is belittling the former president."

Halleck: "I did not mean to say that you were belittling the former president of the United States. I do not think I used that word."

Boggs: "Yes, you did, I hate to say."

Halleck: "If I did I am going to stand on it."

All of which about sums up the level of the current debate on how much money the federal government should spend.

GI REISSUE — Most World War II veterans who have tried their old uniforms recently probably have arrived at the sad conclusion that they're not the men they used to be. The tight fits and the bulges must make the kids and the little woman snicker. However, if Rep. Cornelius E. Gallagher of New Jersey has his way, this condition will change. Gallagher believes that most World War II vets have outgrown their uniforms, so he recently wrote the secretaries of the Army and Navy:

"I would like to suggest that the federal government authorize the issue from surplus stock of World War II type uniforms to any individual who is a veteran of United States military service and who is a member of a veteran's organization chartered by the Congress."

It sure would pretty up some of those home town parades on patriotic days!

Make Home More Humid To Relieve Dry Skin

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

The air is at fault. We know a lack of moisture in the outer layers of the skin is responsible for dryness. Applying oils or fatty salves helps by keeping in the moisture.

In the past, victims of dryness were advised to use cleansing creams or oils instead of bathing. There usually is a basis for many of these old beliefs and this is true of the ideas about soap and water. Washing removes the natural oils of the skin and allows the water to evaporate, making the skin dry.

All this can be avoided by bathing (soaking is wonderful) or showering and applying a greasy preparation immediately to lock in the moisture. Several bath oils and other emollient products are available to combine the method. The main hazard of this bath-oil mixture, especially for the elderly, is climbing out of a slippery tub. Be careful. Meanwhile, making the home more humid will lessen the evaporation of moisture from the skin.

Ordinary dryness should not be confused with the scaling, redness, and itching associated with skin diseases. This is a troublesome feature of many forms of dermatitis. The symptom may be part of the skin condition and correcting the dryness is helpful but not curative.

In others, treating the dryness leads to cure of the dermatitis. Examples include sheet dermatitis in bedfast persons and the dry scaling and redness that develop after long exposure to hot air from a register on the car heater.

Dr. Van Dellen will send leaflet on dry skin if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.
TOMORROW: Deafness from noise.

Murdered Baltimore Mailman Wrote JFK Touching Letter On Last Walk

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—William Moore, the Baltimore mailman found shot through the forehead and neck beside an Alabama highway, had written a letter to President Kennedy before he started on his long desegregation walk to Mississippi.

To dramatize the letter, he carried it by hand on a 45-mile hike from Baltimore to the White House. He did not hike 50 miles, as did brother Bob, to dramatize the physical fitness program, but to dramatize a human rights program about which Moore had a deep concern.

The letter addressed to the President read:

"Dear Mr. President:
"I have just finished walking from Baltimore, Maryland, to the White House. I am a mailman, and this is the farthest I ever have walked to deliver a letter. Recently I walked from Baltimore to the state capitol at Annapolis with an appeal for more effective civil rights legislation.

"It is not so much that I need the exercise as that I must do what I can toward achieving human brotherhood. Walking and letter delivering are my so-called 'professional skills,' as legislation and administration are yours—and we must do the best we can with the abilities that we have.

"Two of my great-grandfathers from Mississippi fought for the South in the Civil War. I was raised for seven years in that state; Relatives of mine lived there and in Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Arkansas, and Texas. The South is like my second home. I used to think as they now think. But I have had the advantage of living most of my life in states with greater racial tolerance. I am now employed in your totally integrated Post Office Department. I can see the harm to the white man as well as to the Negro, where racial prejudice and denial of civil rights is the custom.

"So within the next month or two, I will start walking from the White House here, destined for Mississippi, with these signs on my back saying 'End Segregation in America' and 'Equal Rights for All Men.' If I may deliver any letters from you to those on my line of travel, I would be most happy to do so.

"At this moment I have neither sufficient accumulated vacation time nor adequate funds to complete this proposed thousand-mile journey. It is my hope that if I get started and walk for a week or two, that somehow the means to finish my walk will be made available. I don't believe that any similar walk has ever been undertaken before, and I have the legs to do the job.

Sincerely,
(Signed)
William L. Moore"

That letter, a great Magna Charta on human rights, probably never reached the President. When Moore got to the White House, a guard told him, "You can't come in here."

"How can I deliver this letter?" the mailman asked.

"Drop it in the mail box," the White House guard replied.

However, I do not mean to be critical of the President, because I was equally guilty of not seeing Moore, as I shall report in an early column.

Two Enemies Of Cigarettes

The Kennedy Administration, which has been very slow compared with Eisenhower in criticizing health dangers from cigarettes, is going to be put on the spot by two of its Democratic supporters. They are Sen. Frank Moss of Utah and Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, the latter a brother of the Secretary of the Interior.

Moss and Udall plan to introduce legislation putting the entire question of smoking under the Food and Drug Administration, which to date only has jurisdiction over food, drugs, and cosmetics.

Under the present law, food and drug is required to ban any food, drug, or cosmetic which shows the slightest sign of inducing cancer, which was the reason why it cited some 17 shades of lipstick several years ago.

Since many doctors, led by Dr. Alton Ochsner of Tulane University, one of the leading lung specialists of the United States, have found that cigarettes do cause lung cancer, the Food and Drug Administration would be required to act.

Moss and Udall consider it inconsistent that Food and Drug permits a tolerance of only two parts in one million of nicotine in food, and the same tolerance for arsenic. Yet, in cigarettes there is 6,000 times as much nicotine. It is nicotine which has such a bad reaction on the heart.

Another ingredient used in cigarettes is coumarin, a compound once added to vanilla flavoring, but now banned by the Food and Drug Administration because it contains arsenic. However, coumarin is not banned in cigarettes.

Sen. Maurice Neuberger has introduced legislation requiring cigarettes to be marked with danger warnings, such as a skull and crossbones.

Congressman Udall argues that Food and Drug would never permit a bottle of catsup on the table marked "dangerous." Therefore, why permit cigarettes to be sold marked "dangerous?" If they are dangerous he is for letting the Food and Drug Administration decide and then ban, or not ban, them altogether.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

We took her out of Lake Worth Inlet slowly and headed into the open sea. The voyage was to be from Palm Beach to West Bend, at Grand Bahama, 55 nautical miles. It doesn't sound like much, but it means crossing the Gulf Stream, a northbound current in the Atlantic ocean. The four exhausts of Away We Go gurgled their throats in salt water.

I turned the wheel over to Kelly. "Keep her on a compass heading of 115," I said. She nodded. She sat on the flying bridge, an attractive honey-haired woman, smiling to herself at the sunspangled beauty of the water. I went below and called Lake Worth Coast Guard.

Away We Go, I reported, cleared the inlet at 9:16 a. m. for West Bend. Estimated speed: 9 knots. Estimated time of arrival at West Bend: 3:14 p. m. The true course between the two points is 094, but the corrected course, allowing two knots for northerly drift in the Gulf Stream, and one more for a southerly set to the morning breeze, was between 115 and 120.

Away We Go, I said, would report every hour on the hour. If one report was missed in transmission, the Coast Guard would not be expected to be alarmed. If two consecutive reports were missed, please send search and rescue groups. The Coast Guardsman repeated the message on ship-to-shore phone, and cut out.

I went over the charts once more. The course was correct. Normally, Away We Go, a 35-foot cabin cruiser, comes up on top of the sea at 2600 revolutions on Marine Grays of 225 h. p. and moves at 15 knots at 2900. However, Leon Hodge of E. & H. Boat Works in Lake Park had overhauled both engines and advised keeping the engines at low speed for 25 hours.

The fume detector showed green. The bilge pumps showed no water below. The four heat indicators were normal. Below, in two tanks, were 200 gallons of gasoline. On the forepeak was a white life raft in chocks, so that if something awkward happened suddenly, it would float free. In it was a bowie knife, a 22 rifle, one paddle and some water.

I love the sea, my friends, but I do not trust it. It is a beautiful and vicious hussy. I tried the 65 watt RCA transmitter on another band, and communicated with other boats. No one was going to West Bend, so we would make this voyage alone. The night before, we ate in Taboo at Palm Beach with Jim Peterson, who was a good pitcher when the A's were in Philadelphia and Connie Mack was waving his fielders out with a scoreboard.

"Don't do it," he said. "I made it once. That Gulf Stream is murder." His wife, Dinger, is not only pretty, but a fine story teller. She was telling about a monsignor who asked that a prayer be said for a veteran church usher at Palm Beach, who was leaving. "I promised not to mention any names," the priest said, "but he has a new job. In the White House."

Kelly and I sat on the flying bridge and watched the coast of Florida disappear behind the boat.

The sea changed in color from lime green to royal blue. It was everywhere. The long grounds-wells lifted the boat high, and sat her down slowly. The sky was sunny and pale blue. A few fleecy clouds converted the scene to a picture postcard. Off to the south-east was a thunderhead, a big ball of vanilla ice cream.

Every hour I called Lake Worth Coast Guard. They could hear me clearly, but their words were raspy and broken. No matter how far we sailed, or how long, we were in the middle of the same ocean, a white bullseye in a blue target. Once we saw a smudge to the south, I broke out the glasses.

"Tanker," I said. "Northbound. That means we must be in the Gulf Stream because they use it to pick up an additional two knots of speed. Southbound they avoid it."

"You're going to hit West End on the nose," Kelly said. "I have more faith in you than you have." Nice. The only comforting thought I had was that it is not easy to miss the Bahamas. It can be done, but this was our first long sea voyage, and I didn't want to try. We ate chicken sandwiches and drank coffee. The hours ticked by. Nothing but sea and sky. We saw a baby black whale lying on the surface and two big turtles, as big as sewer plates, dived as the boat approached. Sea and sky. Sky and sea. The thrum of engines. The snap of a pennant in the breeze.

The wind freshened from the south. Little white feathers appeared on the waves. At 2 p. m. I called the Coast Guard again, but could not decipher the squawky reply. As I climbed back up on the flying bridge, Kelly pointed. "Land," she said. I looked. "Where?" I said. I squinted through sun glasses.

There was a definite smudge dead on the bows. "Well," I said, and kissed her. "Well, now." "It's West End," she said.

It was West End. As we slowed down to turn into the marina, I checked the time. 2:55 p. m. We were 19 minutes early. I went below to call Lake Worth and heard the voice of Cpt. Shackleton at West End.

"Lake Worth Coast Guard," he said. "Away We Go is pulling into the marina at West End right now. . . . Yes. Everything okay . . ."

A few minutes later, at the dock, Bahama customs agents came aboard. We acted like seasoned sailors. Kelly grinned. "I knew you could do it, Chris," she said. . . .

Urban Renewal Removes Eyesores But Brings New Headaches To Many Cities

EDITOR'S NOTE: Many American cities are deeply involved today in Urban Renewal and are reaping both its advantages and its problems. Here is a report about Atlanta, where six major projects are changing the property lines and the skyline of the "inner city."

By AL KUETTNER

United Press International
ATLANTA (UPI) — Henry C. Goolsby is a refugee from an Urban Renewal project.

Where his automotive supply firm once stood on corner property he had owned with a partner for years, a plush motel with a swimming pool and sun deck is now going up.

Next door to Goolsby's old property, a 23-story high rise apartment is reaching for the sky.

To reach his new place, Goolsby has to drive past his old place every morning. And every morning, he says, it's still difficult to keep from getting blazing mad.

"I have been the victim of a land grab," Goolsby said in an interview.

When Urban Renewal hit Atlanta a few years ago, Goolsby was doing pretty well. His business had as neighbors a large number of small and often dilapidated shops and stores. Most of them were old, but that didn't hurt Goolsby's business.

After months of dickering with Urban Renewal, with and without lawyers, Goolsby said he finally threw in the sponge and sold his property for $2.45 a square foot. After searching a year for another place, he said he had to pay $3 per foot to rebuild less suitable premises in a less suitable location.

One Of Many

Like many other cities across the nation, Atlanta's inner city is being vastly altered by Urban Renewal. Six major projects are in the works. In two huge areas adjacent to a new expressway system, luxury motels and upper income apartments are replacing dilapidated housing, catfish diners and herb houses.

In another project near the one that took Goolsby's property, R. L. Colby operates a candy specialty firm. Much of the land around his building has been cleared but he is still holding on—and out.

"We'll be glad to buy his place any time he gets ready to sell," an Urban Renewal official said.

That's what Colby is afraid of—that he will have to sell at Urban Renewal's price. He said the price he has been quoted so far "wouldn't pay to move and get relocated."

Colby's problem has been complicated by health inspectors who directed him to make repairs to keep rodents and insects out of his candy plant. He alleges this pressure came after Urban Renewal came.

But, because he's in an Urban Renewal area, he is unable to obtain a city building permit to make the renovations. Without a government health clearance, he can no longer sell in interstate commerce and has been reduced to door-to-door sales in town.

The Good Points

On the other side of the ledger is the massive cleanup of ancient dwellings, many without inside plumbing, and an overnight windfall in tax revenue.

It is estimated that city and state tax revenues on the redeveloped sites will be five times greater than before.

As the projects roll on, critics are asking whether the end product justifies the means whereby owners of private business property are forced to sell.

"I thought urban renewal was designed to clear out slums, not to confiscate property from private individuals under the guise of eminent domain," an Atlanta city official said.

Urban Renewal projects now take up 1,335 acres here and have uprooted about 16,000 persons, a majority of them Negroes. They are being relocated in new housing (about $75 per month for a $10,000 three-bedroom home over a 40-year period) or in existing housing.

Col. Malcolm D. Jones, Atlanta Urban Renewal Director, points out that only 291 out of 3,799 displaced families went into public housing, where monthly rental payments are only $30. He said this indicated the ability and interest of displaced persons to acquire their own homes in the so-called "221 housing program."

Urban Renewal inspectors keep a close eye on new federally backed housing and existing housing that is being fixed up under a renovation section of the slum clearance program. Occupants are required to keep their places tidy and are warned about such eyesores as old cars, unsightly trash and outbuildings.

Jones would like to see violators of the housing code handled like traffic offenders. He also advocates required cleanliness clinics in lieu of some fines.

Jones feels the overall results of the program far overshadow the complaints. He insists that property owners inside an urban renewal area can sell to other private interests if they don't want to sell to the project. He said owners usually have notice long in advance of the need for property by Urban Renewal demolition teams.

Expanded Program
Urban Renewal is a federal aid program that started as a means of clearing slums where people live and recovering the land for more tax productive use. The program lately has gone heavily into rejuvenation of business property as well as residential areas. That's where most of the criticism comes here.

The 2.19 acres of the block where Goolsby was sold for $200,000. It formerly brought in $2,000 a year in city taxes but is now producing $40,000.

When property is designated for urban renewal, everything in the area is either bought voluntarily by the local Housing Authority, acting as Urban Renewal agent, or it is condemned and bought for an appraised price.

All the land is then cleared and the real estate is resold on a bid basis to private interests. They can build any type structure approved for the area, Jones said. Each of the projects would include one or more parks and schools, space for churches, neighborhood type service stores and public facilities.

Termites Are Swarming In Cumberland Now

Home Owners Report Worst Season In Years

Mild Winter Held Responsible

Home owners all over this area have reported unusually large swarmings of termites. Some authorities attribute the condition to the milder winter. Evidently, the absence of continued below-freezing temperatures allowed maximum termite colony activity close to the ground surface. Termites burrow up from the ground in search of wood and often attack the supporting under-structure of homes. Only an inspection by experts can determine if the under-structure is infested. If termite infestation in your home is allowed to spread unchecked, very costly damage can occur—far out of proportion to the few pounds of wood the termites actually eat.

If you see an insect that looks like this, your home may be in danger!

It is difficult for home owners to tell the difference between termites and flying ants. If you have termites, you have TROUBLE. They just bore in and start eating. Brick, stone or concrete will not necessarily stop them. Because they hide while they destroy, their presence is rarely discovered by the home owner until the damage has been done. Don't take a chance. Call Terminix now and have an expert determine whether or not those insects are really termites. There is absolutely no cost or obligation for an inspection and a reliable recommendation. Terminix is the world's largest termite control organization—with 35 years of dependable service.

Only Terminix Offers This Exclusive $5,000 Insured Damage Guarantee

If your home qualifies—as have thousands of others in this area—Terminix will take on the entire responsibility for protecting your home—and every item in it—against the expense of treatment and also against any future damage by subterranean termites. If damage should occur, repairs and replacements up to $5,000 will be made without any cost to you whatsoever. This Guarantee is backed by the Terminix chemical manufacturer, your local Terminix Company and is insured by the world's oldest insurance company. Call now for free inspection—no charge or obligation.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 264 Northerners didn't let their hearts be hardened against all British because of aid given the Rebels by the British government. They sent aid to English sufferers from the blockade of Southern ports.

Diminished cotton supplies forced various English mills to run half-time or shut down altogether by the end of 1862. The resultant unemployment brought hunger to thousands.

Pitiful cries of distress that reverberated over—moved many to repress their anger against Britain for outfitting such raiders as the Alabama and Florida for the Confederate navy. A chartered merchant ship, George Griswold, was loaded at New York with flour, meat and other edibles contributed for starving idle mill workers.

Paradoxically, the Union had to send a war vessel to protect the George Griswold from the Rebel raiders preying on shipping in and out of New York.

Railroad Liable

LYON, France (AP)—Railroad companies are responsible for bottles thrown out of train windows, the court of appeals at Lyon has decided.

The French national railroad has been ordered to pay damages to a lady traveler who was hit on the head by a bottle in a Lyon railroad station. The lady was standing on the platform when a bottle coming from a passing train hit her. She suffered two broken vertebrae.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—The only news I could get out of Warner Brothers about Bing Crosby stepping out of "The Devil's Advocate" was that the picture had been postponed indefinitely.

It seemed strange, because Bing had signed a contract and expected to go to Rome shortly with director Henry King. Bing was eager to play the role of a priest, too.

Whether Bing didn't feel up to making that trip now (so soon after his recent surgery) or whether Jack Warner decided against filming it, are points that haven't been answered.

I rather think that Bing, deciding to give up the project, killed what was to be one of Warner's biggest films.

Shelley Berman, who has done almost as much for the telephone (his comic monologues and records) as Alexander Graham Bell and American Tel and Tel, is hanging up the receiver to go dramatic for Lewis Milestone in "The Sons."

I hope Perle Mesta listens to the offer made her by writer Erna Lazarus about starring in a TV show which would star our former lady ambassador in a seers from Washington, D.C. Although she is trying hard to be brave, Perle is heartbroken over the death of her sister, Mrs. Tyson, with whom she was so close. Work is a wonderful solace—and TV is hard work.

Among the guests at the party Cyd Charisse gave in honor of Tony Martin on Tuesday night were the Vincente Minnelli, Kirk Douglas, Tony Curtis and Christine Kaufmann, the John Gavins, Phil Silvers, Sidney Korshaks, Gracie and George Burns and the Eddie Robinsons. Cyd called it a pre-Las Vegas party. Tony opens at the Riviera on May 2.

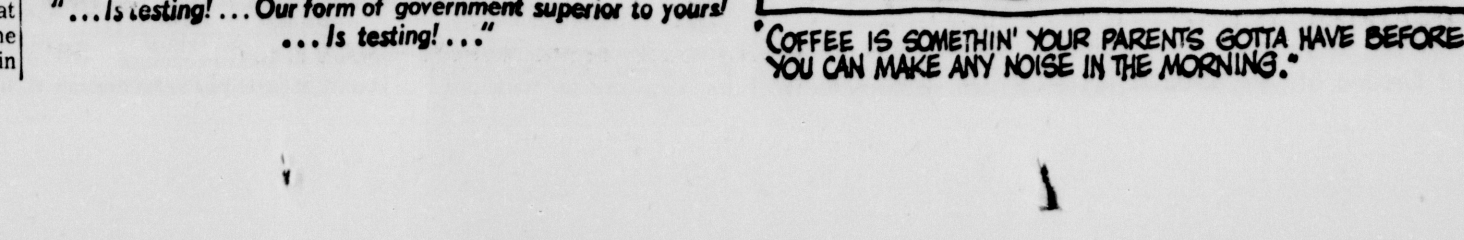

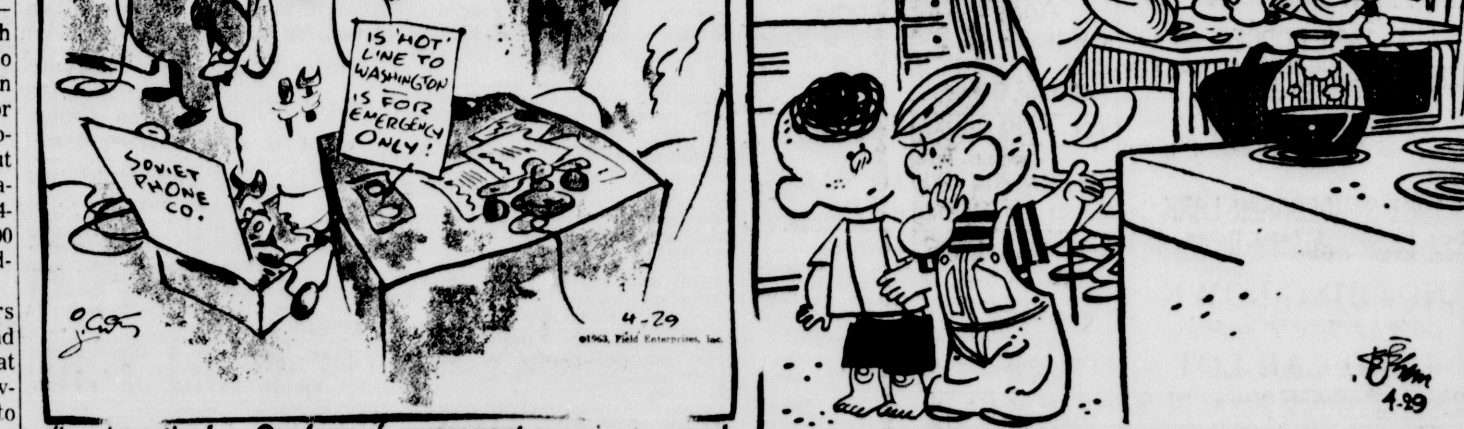

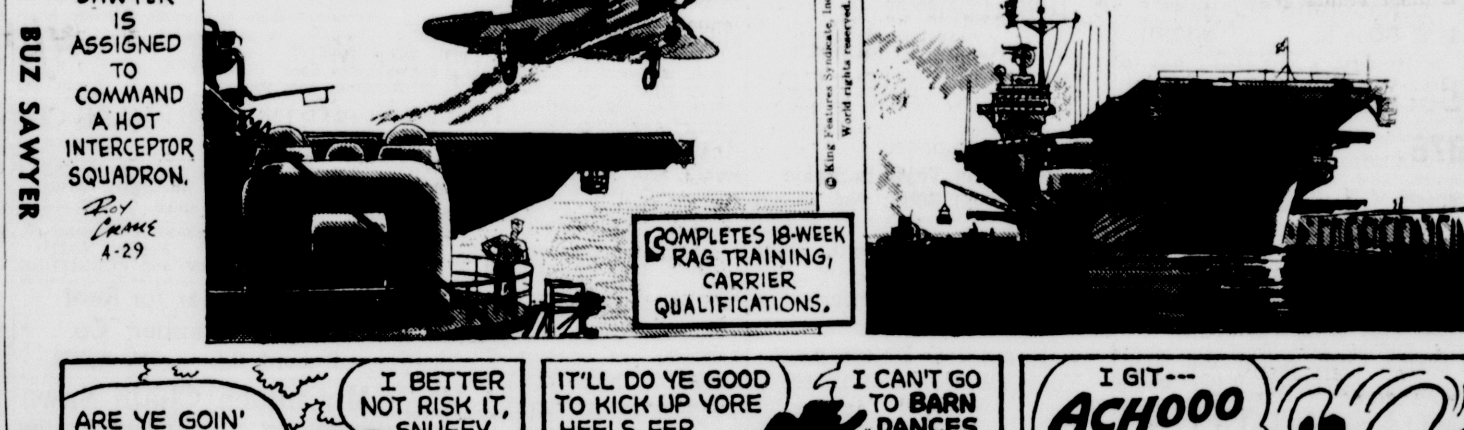

Cyd told me that after she finished "The Assassins" in Madrid with Hugh O'Brian, Sam Bronston offered her a role in "Paris, 1900," about the building of the Eiffel Tower. "And I think I'll accept," Cyd told me.

Far be it from me to hint that there's a tie-up between the two—but it's pretty wily of 20th Century-Fox bosses to decide to dress, or undress, Sandra Dee in a masquerade sequence for "Take Her, She's Mine" as Cleopatra! And is Sandy a knockout in the $3,500 outfit designer Travilla whipped up for her. The 24-karat gold plated cloth cost $100 per yard and it is heavily beaded in jewels.

With this, blonde Sandra wears a jeweled wig and an asp and looks so utterly devastating that it won't be hard for James Stewart, who plays her father, not to recognize her in the outfit. That wig, by the way, is the same Elizabeth Taylor wears in "Cleopatra."

Memorial Rites Today, Tuesday For Blast Dead

Cause Of Explosion At ABL Investigated

Memorial services are scheduled for two of the three men who are missing and presumed dead in an explosion which destroyed a chemical processing building early Saturday morning at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory at Rocket Center, W. Va.

A requiem mass in memory of Chester R. Kenner, 27, Midland, will be celebrated tomorrow at 11 a.m. at St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Midland, by Rev. John Sleeman, and a memorial service for David L. Wright, 27, of 219 Walnut Street, Westernport, will be held today at 2 p.m. at Piedmont Pentecostal Holiness Church by Rev. Rex Coffman and Rev. Donald Marple.

The other missing man who is presumed dead is Egil Ludvigsen, 29, of 4 Fourth Street, Oakland.

Ten other men were injured in the blast which caused extensive damage all over the ABL plant site.

Probe Under Way

The explosion occurred about 3:30 a.m. and naval and civilian officials combed the blast area over this weekend in an effort to determine the cause of the incident which was described by some witnesses as like an atomic blast.

The men presumed dead all were employed as explosives operators and were working in the processing building which was destroyed.

The blast scattered debris over a half-mile area and shattered windows of other buildings located on the 1,600-acre grounds. Just about every one of the 200 buildings on the ABL facility was damaged.

About 2,700 persons are employed at ABL, but only about 150 to 200 were at work at the time of the explosion.

Six In Hospitals

Six of the 10 men who were injured are still patients in local hospitals.

Admitted to Memorial Hospital were Kenneth Trenter, 38, Rawlings; Clarence Raley, 30, also of Rawlings, and Bernard Keating, 28, Frostburg. All were reported in "satisfactory" condition last night.

In "satisfactory" condition at Sacred Heart Hospital were Leo Wempe, 43, of 601 Oldtown Road; Dennis L. Yaider, 25, of 11 Humbird Street, and Billy Sundbye, 53, of 731 National Highway, LaVale.

Westernport Natives

Mr. Kenner, a graduate of Bruce High School, joined ABL on April 20, 1961. A veteran of the Army, he held the rank of sergeant in the Lonaconing Military Police Unit.

A native of Westernport, and son of Jonas H. and Viola C. (Riggelman) Kenner, of Westernport, his wife was the former Frances Crowe.

He was a 1953 graduate of Bruce High School and served in the Navy four years.

The Kenners have a daughter, Deborah R. Kenner. He also has four brothers, Richard H. and L. Cecil Kenner, both of Midland, and Ervin P. and Charles E. Kenner, who resided with their parents in Westernport.

Mr. Wright was born in Westernport, a son of Noah B. Wright, Kent, Ohio, and Mrs. Beulah Wright Smith, Roselle, N. J.

A former police officer in Westernport, he resigned that post in November 1960, to accept employment at ABL.

His wife is the former Marjorie Button of New York. They have two sons, David L. Wright Jr. and Jeffrey D. Wright, both at home.

He also has a brother, Noah B. Wright Jr., Westernport, and four sisters, Mrs. Christine Evans, Piedmont; Mrs. Bersey Marple, Luke; Mrs. Philip Van Dorn, Vienna, Va., and Miss Nancy Wright, Roselle, N. J.

Air Force Veteran

Born in Oslo, Norway, Mr. Ludvigsen came to this country in January, 1949, and has resided since then with an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Peder E. Baasland, RD 1, Oakland.

He graduated from old Accident High School and served four years in the Air Force, 18 months of which was served on Okinawa.

He is married to the former Miss Lucille Tasker of Oakland. His mother, two brothers and a sister reside in Oslo.

Card Party Slated

St. Anthony's Church, Ridgeley, will conduct a card party tomorrow at 8:15 p.m. in the church social hall.

Scene Of Explosion At ABL

This picture was taken in the vicinity of a rocket-processing building which was destroyed by an explosion early Saturday morning at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory. Three persons are missing and presumed dead and 10 others were injured. Debris was scattered over a half-mile radius and several small buildings shown in the picture also were destroyed. The cause of the bomb-like explosion is still being investigated by Naval and civilian authorities.

Douglas' Canal Efforts Praised By Freeman

WILLIAMSPORT, Md. (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman Saturday night praised Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme Court for his efforts to convert the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal into a national park.

Because of Douglas, Freeman said, "we still have a canal and the route for millions to enjoy."

Freeman and about 300 others had joined Douglas in his annual hike along the 16-mile stretch of the canal. Douglas started his spring hike in 1954 in an effort to promote the area as a potential national park.

"We need the C & O canal park as a wilderness area," Freeman said and added, "I do not think there will be enough federal and state park lands for the people of the future."

Freeman spoke at the traditional Canal Club Association banquet held annually after the trek along the towpath.

Referring to Freeman and the hike, Douglas said, "I hope you string along with us in the future to establish the park."

The justice added "The present Secretary of Agriculture is the only one I ever knew... who could even walk 20 miles."

Freeman, clad in an old Marine camouflage suit, went an extra four miles Saturday because his son, Michael, needed to hike 20 miles to qualify for a Boy Scout merit badge. So the secretary accompanied him.

Also hiking during the sunny 70-degree weather were three sons of Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy—Joseph, 10, Robert 9, and David, 7. All three went the distance.

Craig McNamara, 13, son of the secretary of defense, and Bobby Shriver, 8, son of the Peace Corps director and cousin to the Kennedy youngsters, also were among the hikers.

Douglas and his purebred Shetland sheepdog, Sandy, led the marchers on the 16-mile distance between Hancock and Four Locks.

One of the most famous incidents of the yearly hikes happened in 1961 on a wet, dripping day when an innkeeper ordered Secretary of Interior Stewart L. Udall and Sen. Paul Douglas, D-Ill., and 25 to 30 others out of a restaurant where they had sought shelter to eat their sandwiches. The innkeeper said later she didn't know who the hikers were, but only knew they were making her floor muddy.

Annual Report Is Submitted By Fire Chief

The Baltimore Pike Volunteer Fire Company answered 16 calls during 1962 including four house fires, eight grass fires, two motor vehicles, a miscellaneous call to the trash dump and an assist call.

The average number of men who answered the calls was 10 and the total number of man hours was tabulated at 271, according to Fire Chief Edwin F. Gnevy, who said the total number of miles driven on the emergencies was 260.

A report was given on parades attended and the number of drills which were held. Carl Mallow and Frank Heavner attended all the alarms calls of the year.

Chief Gnevy pointed out that the company spent $2,117.68 on new apparatus and $809.26 for maintenance and equipment.

Cancer Crusade Returns Ahead Of Last Year

Many Captains Still Must Report

Officials of the Allegany County Chapter of the American Cancer Society said last night early returns from its annual "Sunday Crusade" were running well ahead of the totals for the same period last year.

Several hundred volunteers took part in the house-to-house canvass and tapers from local banks helped tabulate returns made by some of the 105 captains in the drive.

Returns were made yesterday and last night to the Times-News Building and leaders of the drive said they were optimistic that this year's drive would top last year's mark.

In cases where no one was home yesterday, volunteers left small brown envelopes which residents may use to mail in their contributions. Persons who were not contacted yesterday and who wish to send in a donation may mail it to Cancer Crusade, 128 Union Street, Cumberland, Md.

Last night's returns did not include those from a number of towns throughout the county. Out of 49 captains throughout the county, only 22 made returns last night. There were 56 captains in the city and only 16 failed to make returns.

Team captains are urged to make their returns to the chapter's headquarters as soon as possible.

Robert G. Garner is general chairman of the campaign and Mrs. Katie Kilroy is chairman of the house-to-house canvass in Cumberland.

The returns were coordinated last night by Mrs. Lucile Roeder, president of the county chapter, and Mrs. Jean Cioni, executive secretary.
